

LCDR Mathew "Jason" Thomas

LCDR Mathew "Jason" Thomas, MPH has undergraduate training in environmental health at Colorado State University's College of Veterinary and Biomedical Sciences. Commissioned in the United States Navy's Medical Service Corps and served in various roles including the preventive medicine division officer at Naval Hospital Newport, assistant Bureau of Medicine and Surgery liaison to Naval Sea Systems Command, and the environmental health officer for Fleet Hospital Fort Dix, Detachment 8. Transferred to the United States Public Health Service upon completion of graduate training at Columbia University's Mailman School of Public Health, and served as the deputy director of public health for the National Park Service. LCDR Thomas is current assigned to CDC's Division of Global Migration and Quarantine as the officer-in-charge of the Washington Quarantine Station, and his area of responsibility includes the ports of entry in the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia.